

Redmen Battle Golden Bears In Canadian Championship Tilt

The Sun Finally Sets On The Empire

Work on the mythical Montreal subway has finally commenced. Even the venerable Queen Victoria will be forced to submit to progress.

by CHUCK DENTON

The McGill Redmen will meet the Alberta Golden Bears Saturday afternoon at Molson stadium in competition for the Canadian Intercollegiate championship.

As each team is the champion in its own league; the game promises to be a real crowd pleaser.

The Golden Bears, back in football for their second season after a ten year layoff, have come up with one of the toughest teams seen out West for many years. Through the fall season the Bears ran over the defending champion University of B.C. Thunderbirds, 20-2 and 20-6, and completely wiped out the University of Saskatchewan Huskies, 19-0 and 38-1.

ATTACK

Using a double-wingback attack, the Bears will probably present a fast-running force backed up by superb ball handling and a solid line. With returnee Bruce Bryson calling the plays, they'll place 190 pound fullback Ross Christenson in starting backfield along with halfback Ted Frechette.

This is the second year in a row that the East and the West have met to vie for the unofficial Canadian title and the Churchill Cup.

The game marks the last time that the 1960 Redmen, Champions of the Eastern League will play together as a unit.

SKYPECK

Once again Tom Skypeck will give demonstration of his ability as he takes to the helm of the Redmen. Completely recovered from his thumb injury as demonstrated last Saturday at Queen's, Skypeck will hurl more football lightning.

Receiving will be all-stars Willie Lambert and Johnny Moore. Harry Haukkala's educated footwork, an all-star line including Chuck Wood and All Braekvelt on guard position and tackles Tom Steff and Paul Harasimowicz, all add up to a very rough team, as the Eastern League ruefully found out.

COACHING

Expert coaching is provided by Bruce Coulter, who has guided the Redmen through the season.

To both teams the game on Saturday is more than a prestige affair. Both teams are trying to brighten up the idea of a national intercollegiate union.

Aiding head Alberta coach Murray Smith, will be line coach Frankie Morris, a standout during his pro years with the Toronto Argonauts and the Edmonton Eskimos, and backfield coach Clare Drake.

PLAYERS

29 players will also make the trip. With wingbacks Bert Carron and Ken Neilson and ends like Maury Van Vliet Jr. and Dennis Kadatz, the whole team is an imposing threat, by Western standards. They are already on the way here, having left Edmonton at midnight last night.

The proceeds of the game will go to the Canadian Paraplegic Association and to defer the expenses incurred by the Alberta team.

Any students who dislike the idea of having to pay for this, a home game, is reminded that McGill students are the only members of a Canadian University that are admitted free to regular home football games.

Enrollment Figure Hits Record High

Figures released yesterday by Principal F. Cyril James revealed that enrollment at McGill is fast approaching 9500 students — the maximum recently established by the Board of Governors.

Official statistics compiled by the Registrar as of November 1 indicate that there are currently 8463 full-time students attending the University in University courses. This compares with the previous all-time high of 8208 registered in 1947 when Dawson College was also being used because of the overflowing number.

HIGHER

This year it is likely that the enrollment will be over 8700 as the final figures in February usually indicate a rise of about 300.

The new figure represents an increase of 1000 students in two years. Should another 1000 students register in the next few years, the enrollment will exceed the maximum set by the Governors.

The Faculty of Arts and Science shows the greatest increase. There are 239 more in Arts, 173 more in Science, and 15 more in Commerce than in November one year ago. In all departments, the Faculty has shown an increase of 545 with a total enrollment of 3493.

ENGINEERING

Engineering has 1493 students — an increase of 49 over last year, whereas the Faculty of Law with 201 shows a decline of 35.

The Faculty of Graduate Studies where the exact enrollment has not yet been established, already exceeds last year's total by 79 with 812 students.

Minor declines in Medicine, Dentistry and Agriculture were noted.

The ratio of males to female students in the University is approximately 2:1 with 5817 men students to 2846 women. The geographical and religious compositions of the student body will not be ready until the final registration figures in February 1961 have been tabulated.

Student Panel Analyzes Communism

by ALAN CHODOS

Is Communism dominating the new nations of the world? Five McGill students, representing opinions that span four continents, gave their answers at a panel discussion yesterday.

Sponsored jointly by the International Students' Association and the Ukrainian Club, the panel considered the question, "How Communism Capitalizes on Nationalism". The speakers were Mr. Ifegwu Eke, of Nigeria; Mr. Sant Singh of India; Mr. Frank Kunz, of Hungary; Mr. Roman Karpishka, of the Ukraine; and Mr. Michel Boyer, representing Cuba.

Eke, discussing the problem of African nationalism, maintained that "There is no nationalist tendency to look to the Communists for anything". But he explained that the Africans are forced to turn to the Russians, because, "Either through miscalculation or lack of understanding, the Western democracies have been unable to recognize what is implied by African nationalism".

SUEZ

As an example, Eke cited the Suez crisis of 1956. All that Nasser wanted, he stated, was to obtain the funds necessary to build the Aswan Dam.

When the West refused to co-operate, Nasser nationalized the Suez Canal, and brought on the Anglo-French attack. He pointed out that subsequent toll losses, coupled with the expense of the war, cost the British and the French more than enough to build the Aswan Dam.

"Russia is now building the Aswan Dam", Eke concluded. "Russians are now very well received in Africa."

Singh, the second speaker, enumerated the various means used by Communists to take advantage of nationalism. He quoted Joseph Stalin, who said in a speech in 1920 that "We Communists support nationalism when it tends to weaken capitalism, and we condemn it when it tends to weaken us".

The devices used by the Communists to achieve their aims, claimed Singh, are their own ideology, various economic pressures, and the fact that some nations are tempted to look to the communist system to raise their standard of living.

EXAMPLE

As an example of this last point, Singh mentioned a certain province in his native India, where the inhabitants voted a communist government into power by democratic means. This is the only case on record anywhere in the world, he declared, but it nevertheless points out a serious potential danger.

"The most characteristic feature of the Hungarian Revolution of 1956, is that it was not communism that capitalized on nationalism, but nationalism that capitalized on communism". This was the opinion of Kunz who claimed that the revolution was not a class struggle, but rather an attempt "to get rid of the Soviet Yoke".

Kunz deplored the lack of planning and leadership that characterized the uprising, but he maintained that some good was nevertheless achieved. "The Hungarian revolution was a sign to Moscow that easing of tension was necessary," he said, and pointed out that, in general, standards of living had risen in Hungary as a result of the revolt.

CUBA

Boyer, representing Cuba, was the only member of the panel who did not recognize a communist menace in the country about which he spoke.

"People just don't know what is going on in Cuba," he said. "Castro is not letting the communists infiltrate into Cuba, because he is educating the people and they will choose, Cuban government is a government of the people."

Boyer declared that before the revolution, eight percent of the people owned 71% of the land, and that Castro is now buying back this land in order to distribute it more equally. Contrary to popular opinion, he explained, Castro is indeed repaying the landowners for their loss.

The only reason we never hear about it, is that Castro is paying them according to their own tax estimates of 1958. "The landowners walked right into their own corruption," Boyer concluded.

UKRAINE

The final speaker was Roman Karpishka, president of the Ukrainian Club. He emphasized that while in theory the Ukraine or any other Soviet Republic is free to secede, in reality this is an illusion.

"The Ukraine has been a victim of communist imperialism," he declared. "Because of the presence of Muscovite henchmen as well as Russian armed forces within its boundaries, it would hardly be likely for the Ukraine to secede."

Karpishka also attacked the Ukrainian representation in the United Nations. He called the delegation a Russian puppet, and maintained that "Moscow is trying to capitalize on nationalism by appeasement with a false nationalism."

'U-2' Is Revealed

Signs announcing 'U-2 is coming' are part of the EUS Fall Informal's publicity campaign.

This fact was revealed to the Daily by a spokesman for the Dance Committee, who explained that the 'U-2 Incident' was part of a plan to arouse interest in the dance.

Hypnotism Expert Discusses Work Here On Monday

Hypnotism and its place in modern medicine will be discussed by Dr. Norman Viner, an eminent Montreal neuro-psychiatrist, before the Arts and Science Undergraduate Society on Monday.

Dr. Viner, a pioneer in his field, was one of the first to employ hypnosis as an aid to the diagnosis and treatment of mental disorders and personality disturbances. He has had excellent results, and is a firm believer in the future of hypnosis in the field of mental disease.

He has held the position of Head of the Psychiatric department at the Jewish General. At present he is also affiliated with the Montreal Neurological Institute and the Verdun Protestant Hospital.

The lecture will take place Monday, November 21, from 1 to 2 pm in Moyse Hall.

ed that the 'U-2 Incident' was part of a plan to arouse interest in the dance.

'We want U-2 to come to the dance' he declared, remarking that 'U means you, Undergrads, Underfeds, Underworked, Under the Table, etc., while the 2 stands for either two or too'.

Because the dance is being held on Friday night, students will be able to dance from 9 pm until 1 am, without the Saturday night dance curfew. Music will be continuously supplied by Paul Beauregard, his two vocalists, and a Latin American trio.

QUEEN

The dancing will be interrupted briefly for the crowning of the Queen of the Engineering Fall Informal. She will be one of five finalists chosen on today in the Union Ballroom, by a panel of five judges.

Approximately thirty girls are competing for the crown. After the finalists have been chosen, they will appear in Engineering lectures, on the campus at noon-hour, and will be interviewed on the radio.

Pictures of the Queen and her princesses will be placed in the lobby of the MacDonald Engineering Building, alongside photographs of last year's Queen and princesses.

This custom of choosing a queen originated last year.

The dance takes place November 25, Friday night, in the Currie Gym.

ISA Will Present Survey Of China On, Off Mainland

Mr. Fu-Sung Chu, Minister and Charge D'affaires at the Embassy of the Republic of China, at Ottawa, will address the student body.

On "A Survey of China, On and Off the Mainland".

This speech will be particularly concerned with the efforts of the Republic of China, on the islands of Formosa, Quemoy, and Matsu.

"The topic of the speech was chosen because such conflicts are so much in the news lately, especially in the U.S. presidential campaigns. This is the second in the I.S.A. speaker series, the purpose of which is to help the campus to gain a firsthand knowledge and understanding of foreign affairs," an I.S.A. spokesman told the Daily.

EDUCATION

Mr. Chu was educated at the University of Shanghai, and did his postgraduate work at the University of London. He has held several major diplomatic posts for his government.

The address takes place at 1 pm today in the Union Club-room.

Annual Approaches Sales Record

Today marks the end of the regular sales campaign for the Old McGill '61.

Final results will not be available until the fraternities have turned in their salebooks on Monday; however it is apparent that it will not be necessary to have a second campaign in order to reach this year's sales goal of 1500 Annuals.

PRIZES

Lucky draw prizes won Wednesday and Thursday were: Lilian Swirsky, BSc. 4, whose Annual was sold by Beth Rosenberg, and Peter Rees, BA 4 whose annual was sold by John in the Tuckshop.

Miss Swirsky will receive a $5 gift certificate from Eaton's and Rees will receive a gift with the compliments of Morgan's. The prizes can be picked up at the Annual office any day between 1 and 2 pm. A lucky draw will be held again today and the winner will be announced on Monday.

Sales fever has been running high amongst sales girls and fraternities. In past years only the winning salesgirl has received a prize; the prize being a portrait of herself.

This year the winning salesgirl will receive a $25 gift certificate from Morgan's Ltd. Gift certificates of $15, $10, and $5 from Eaton's will be given to the salesgirls who place second, third, and fourth respectively. These are in addition to the complimentary Annual each girl receives when she sells thirty-five books.

At present Ora Bonin is the top salesgirl having sold more than eighty copies of Old McGill '61. Ten other salesgirls have now sold more than 25 Annuals, and three of these are within reach of Miss Bonin. All salebooks will be turned in by Monday noon so that final results can be tabulated Monday evening.

FRATS

Fraternities have entered the sales competition for the first time and are working hard to win their prizes.

The male fraternity having the highest percentage of sales amongst its active members, including pledges, will receive a free mounted and engraved group photo for each member in the house. The top women's fraternity will receive two free pages in the Fraternity section of Old McGill '61.

The Fraternity section is a new feature in Old McGill and is already attracting much interest. That each fraternity receives individual attention should be of interest to both active members and pledges, who will have something to show family and friends.

Some students are not buying their Annual now in the hope that there will be a second sales campaign in January. The staff of Old McGill '61 emphasizes that there will be no January campaign, and hopes that those who have been holding back will "make an Annual date with a salesgirl" today.

Gagnon To Chair Panel On Quebec Democracy

Jean Louis Gagnon, editor of 'La Presse' and one of the foremost authorities on French Canada, has accepted the chairmanship of MCWA's panel discussion "Democracy in Quebec".

Gagnon has been editor-in-chief of "L'Evenement-Journal", head of the Washington bureau of France-Presse, and has been associated with "La Presse" since 1949.

Panel members are Prof. Paul Bouchard, Reverend Gerard Dion, and Prof. Mason Wade. Prof. Bouchard, a Rhodes scholar, is professor of Economic Geography at Laval University, and Guatemalan Consul to Quebec. Rev. Dion has been director of the Department of Industrial Relations at Laval since 1946. Prof. Wade has been working in the field of Canadian history for the past twenty years, and is known for his book "The French-Canadians 1760-1945."

This discussion is open to the public, free of charge, and will take place Wednesday morning at 10 am, in the auditorium of the Medical Building.

Nominations End Today For Model Parliament

On Wednesday, November 23 elections will be held for the 1960 McGill Model Parliament which is this year being sponsored by the Debating Union.

Nominations for this election must be handed into John, at the Tuckshop of the Union by Friday, November 18, at 3 pm.

This year there will be a party vote, with no independents appearing on the ballot. Independents can be voted for in a section marked "Others".

In order to appear on a ballot for any constituency, the party must have a slate of no less than two and no more than five candidates for that particular constituency. Such things as publicity, and pep rallies are strictly up to the parties.

The constituencies are:-

- 1.) Arts 1 and 2. Music and Divinity.
- 2.) Arts 3 and 4, and Law.
- 3.) Science 1 and 2, Physical Education and Education.
- 4.) Science 3 and 4, Dentistry, and Graduate Nurses.
- 5.) Engineering 1 and 2, and Architecture.
- 6.) Engineering 3, 4 and 5.

7.) Commerce, Medicine, Physiotherapy, Graduate Studies, and Social Work.

SERIOUS

Andrew Roman, B.A. II, chairman of the event, told the Daily that this year the Model Parliament would be of a more serious nature than previous ones, with constructive platforms presented by most parties, and expressed the hope that there will be fewer election irregularities.

Anyone wishing to volunteer his services as a returning officer should leave his name with John, in the Tuckshop, before November 22.

Folk-Singers To Present Ballads Of Many Nations

The McGill Folk Music Society will present a concert of folk songs from many lands, sung by students from McGill and Sir George Williams Universities, tonight, in Moyse Hall.

Among the performers are several who have travelled widely, collecting folk songs from Europe, the United States and Canada. Pete Usher and Jack Nissenon cycled through Great Britain last summer.

George Randolph, a soloist who accompanies himself on the guitar, sings folk songs he learned in France, Israel, and North America, while Paul Buller, who will accompany Dierdre Hall in several American ballads, has acquired his repertoire through visits to Canada's ten provinces.

Also on the program will be performers well known in Montreal. Peter Weldon, with his versatile guitar, will perform sea-shanties, while Eileen Myerson and Richard Rotholz re-appear in this year's concert singing Spanish and English folk songs.

New to Montreal folk music audiences are Solly Matthews, singing in Yiddish, Marilyn Lightstone, and Samuel Reffatoff, doing songs from his native Bulgaria.

The concert is open to the public and tickets can be purchased for 50 cents at the Union Box Office, or at the door.

the view from here

—by AL TUNIS—

Editor's Note: The author of this column, a weekly feature during our golden anniversary year, served as editor-in-chief of The Daily in 1947-48. He now edits the McGill News, published quarterly by the Graduates' Society.

If you haven't yet had an opportunity to read McGill: The Story of a University we would hasten to recommend it to you. It is not a complete chronological history: some reviewers have already pointed out what they considered to be omissions and (perhaps) oversights. The approach in this book, however, is episodic and impressionistic rather than factual and statistical. On this account, we would suggest that the reader who is actively interested in understanding "what makes McGill run" will find in its essays an implicit appreciation of the major forces which have shaped what editor Hugh MacLennan terms "an intricate university".

But how could McGill be otherwise than "intricate"? The term University, in our case, covers the complex of nine faculties, nine schools and nine institutes, something over 8,000 students representing many nationalities, religions and races, just under 800 members of the teaching staff, likewise drawn from many countries of the world. Place these ingredients in the container that is Montreal, Canada's largest city, a multilingual cosmopolis, shake well, and you have a veritable universitas.

In this light, McGill must mean many things to its many people: its students, its faculty, its graduates of many generations and many countries, and to its public near and far who rub shoulders with it physically and spiritually. It would not do at this point — nor are we at all sure that it would be possible — to attempt a classification of the many stereotypes of McGill that have been produced by experience or hearsay.

If there is one aspect of McGill's personality that is more generally known than others, however, it is one which has little to do with the humanist, classical tradition that lies at the core of the Western conception of the university. In his chapter on Sir William Dawson, Principal of McGill from 1855 to 1893, Mr. Edgar Collard says: "The power of his influence gave McGill an inclination toward scientific and professional studies which is still its outstanding characteristic". There can be no argument here: this fact simply reflects the response of the university to the urgent demands and preoccupations of a young, growing and prospering community and country. In the early days of Montreal and Canada, there was urgent need for trained people to open out and develop the resources. Montreal was flourishing as a commercial and later, industrial centre and it is not difficult to trace the practical and material influence brought to bear upon its university.

Moreover, history dies hard. Even today, public interest leans toward the useful and practical. The activities of the university which attract most attention in our newspapers and magazines are those which allegedly have most bearing on the immediate interest and welfare of the community at large.

McGill's reputation in the sciences and professions is a source of great pride and satisfaction. But we would suggest that to identify the fundamental core of McGill's personality, we must return to its complexity. The humanist tradition remains strongly in evidence on the formal level. The faculty of Arts and Science is the largest single faculty in terms of enrolment. McGill, however, is a microcosm: there is hardly a single philosophy, race or religion that is not represented in it and around it, living together, talking together, learning together and from each other.

Situated in the geographic centre of Montreal, hemmed in by the metropolis, McGill has grown up with Montreal, Quebec and Canada and has contributed to the development of all three. But the campus is confined only physically; McGill's people, interests and accomplishments embrace the world.

These are some of the implications derived from a reading of McGill: The Story of a University. You must read it for yourselves to see what we mean.

Dr. Kissinger has written many articles and books on his subject among which is "Nuclear Weapons and Foreign Policy", which won him citation by the Overseas Press Club, 1958.

Panel Discusses

One of the more interesting aspects of this year's MCWA conference will be the panel on "Democracy in Quebec" which will take place on Thursday morning, Nov. 23, in the Auditorium of the Medical Building. The panel discussion is open to the public. Jean Louis Gagnon, editor of La Presse, will be the chairman.

The situation in Quebec (as it has become almost a platitude to say) is unique. People such as Pierre Elliot Trudeau have stated that French Canadians have never really had to struggle for democratic responsible government, but have had it given to them. In other words, he feels that there is no real democratic tradition in Quebec. Some historians such as Michel Brunet have felt that the social system of Quebec and the growth since the Conquest have prevented the emergence of conditions conducive to the liberal democratic society prevalent in North America.

One might add that the often xenophobic nationalism and justified fears of assimilation have forced Quebecers to turn inward and reject much of the experience of modern Canadian life, as either "Orange" or "Central". Others will of course dispute these views.

Against this background, however, is arising a new Quebec, a modern industrialized society made more sensitive to the outside world through the revolution in commu-

Today's Democracy

Four years ago, when first conceived, the McGill Conference on World Affairs was intended to serve as a forum for the discussion of Canada's role in world affairs. In this vein, the first two conferences discussed "Aspects of Canadian Foreign Policy" and "Canadian-American Relations" respectively. With the choice of last year's topic ("The Underdeveloped Countries"), however, the horizons of the Conference were enlarged considerably.

A similar enlargement of horizons characterizes this year's effort. Transcending the usual preoccupation of student conferences with problems of world affairs, the MCWA executive has chosen for discussion a topic which bears directly on the life of every citizen of Canada and the United States — the problems of democracy in North American society.

The theme of MCWA 1960 did not emerge by chance. Rather the choice was made deliberately, based on firm conviction that a thorough discussion of this topic was a matter of high priority as our society crossed the threshold of a new and challenging decade. This conviction stemmed not only from an acute awareness of some of the weaknesses which exist in the present structure of our democratic society but also from the fact that the very validity of the democratic system itself has been increasingly called into question by rival systems.

Fortunately this fact has not gone unrecognized by society at large. For several factors — the tremendous material development of Soviet Russia under a totalitarian regime, the rejection of western parliamentary democracy, by the elites of many countries the existence in our own society of discrimination and bigotry, weaknesses in the areas of education, economic life and social welfare, — all have combined to generate a profound sense of uneasiness and uncertainty among the people of North America with regard to the actual functioning of their democratic system as well as to its future. That our society is in the throes of an "agonizing reappraisal" of the meaning and value of democracy as well as of the actual state of North American democracy is only too clear.

It is therefore hoped that MCWA 1960 will make some contribution however small, to awakening the citizenry at large but more specifically students to a greater realization of the meaning of democracy and the manifold problems of democratic life.

by PAUL NOBLE

During the Conference, the general topic "Democracy in a Changing World: A Study of North American Society" will be examined under three different headings: 1) The Ideas of Democracy and Liberalism, 2) Political Aspects of North American Democratic Society, 3) Economic and Socio-Cultural Aspects of North American Democracy.

The problems to be discussed by the three main speakers are closely tied to this threefold division of the topic. On Monday night, Professor Watkins will examine the historical evolution and present-day meaning of the ideas of democracy and liberalism. On Tuesday one of the major aspects of political life in a democracy — Foreign policy, — constitutes the subject matter of Professor Kissinger's speech. On Wednesday, Professor Lerner will discuss some sociological aspects of North American society. Finally, a panel on Thursday morning will evaluate the functioning of democracy in French Canada.

The actual work of the Conference takes place in the course of four lengthy round-table sessions on Tuesday and Wednesday. At this time the delegates will devote themselves to seminar-style discussions of the conference topic under the direction of several McGill professors and outside technical advisors.

Since a study of the functioning of a particular liberal democratic society becomes fully meaningful only if undertaken from the perspective of the theory (both normative and empirical) of liberal democracy, an examination of theory is the first item on the agenda. This involves not only an inquiry into the meaning and relationship of two extremely important concepts, namely liberalism and democracy and an analysis of their respective value systems, but also an examination of the social, economic and cultural foundations of liberal democracy.

Once these fundamental theoretical questions have been thoroughly analyzed, delegates will turn their attention to an evaluation of the actual functioning of North American society in the political as well as economic and socio-cultural spheres.

In the political sphere, particular attention will be devoted to such matters as the policy of democracies vis-à-vis anti-democratic groups, the roles of public opinion, mass media, key elites and others in the formulation of public and foreign policy, governmental machinery, and finally the role of parties, legislators, the citizen and the student in the democratic process.

The discussion in the realm of socio-cultural affairs will centre around the compatibility of democracy and private enterprise, welfare state planning and socialism, the problems posed for democracy by the growth of big business and big labour as well as the impact of the mass media on democracy, democracy and education, and the questions of censorship.

Democracy in Quebec

ications. The slow changes are evident in the new cadre of leaders springing to the fore among the university students and labour organizers, and more spectacularly in the recent changes in the structure of both provincial and Montreal governments. There is an obvious difference between the late Premier Duplessis and his successors: men like Rene Levesque, Paul Gerin-Lajoie and Premier Jean Lesage.

However, many of the old charges and half truths continue — the attacks that Quebec is a clerical state, the Church being the power behind the throne, the charges that Quebec is the most corrupt part of North America and is so by nature, that the people of Quebec are not "loyal" citizens or true Canadians.

Quebec is little understood among English-speaking people here, and much less so outside the province. In bringing people from one end of Canada to the other, MCWA hopes to illuminate and clarify many of the aspects of Quebec society. They feel that the American delegates who have just elected their first Roman Catholic president will also find the discussion illuminating.

Members of the panel include Prof. Paul Bouchard, Professor of Economic Geography and President of the Spanish Centre of Laval University; Reverend Gerard Dion, Laval's Director of the Department of Industrial Relations; and Prof. Mason Wade, leading American expert on French Canadian affairs.

GO REDMEN GO

by

Elizabeth

Duquet

Women's Editor

The first semi-annual Open Meeting of the Women's Union will be held on Monday, November 28 at 1 pm in the Common Room of Royal Victoria College.

The proposed amendments to the electoral by-laws of the Women's Union will be discussed and voted upon. The changes in the by-laws deal principally with academic requirement. In order to run for any position on the Women's Union Executive one must be academically clear, i.e. have passed all the subjects of the previous year. If upon receiving her report card a member of the executive should be conditioned she will be required to resign from her post, which will then be contested in a by-election at the beginning of the academic year.

Amendments to the constitution of the Red Wing Society will also be presented. Candidates will be required to have a 65% average to be eligible for membership, and must be academically clear to remain in office.

Quorum

In order for these resolutions to be voted upon a quorum of 60 is necessary. It is therefore of prime importance that every woman student make an effort to attend the meeting. If these amendments are passed by the Women's Union they will then be presented to the Students' Executive Council for ratification.

The candidates for election to positions on the Women's Union Executive will be presented at the meeting. The posts being contested are Vice-President, two non-resident Members-at-Large, one resident Member-at-Large, and a first year representative. Candidates for the Red Wing Society will also be introduced.

If any time remains after the discussion on the constitution, reports from the various committee chairmen will be heard.

Election date is Tuesday, November 29. In past years only a small majority proportion of the women students bothered to vote and elections were often decided by three or four votes. If the Women's Union is to have a strong executive it is essential that everyone vote!

Blazers

This year Irving of Montreal is manufacturing the McGill blazers. The procedure for buying a blazer is as follows: the purchaser fills out duplicate slips in the Women's Union office in the basement of R.V.C. one of which is kept by the Women's Union and the other is presented by the students at Irvings. The cost is $22.50 including tax.

Theater Tickets

A theatre Tickets contest is held four or five times each year for the purpose of helping resident and non-resident students to become better acquainted. One can enter the contest by signing one of the lists which are posted in the Arts Building Common Room and on the notice boards in R.V.C.

This month there will be two drawings; one for the November 24 performance of the National Ballet at Her Majesty's Theatre, and the other for the Player's Club's presentation of "Under Milk Wood." The names of two resident and two non-resident girls will be drawn for each event.

Tutoring Service

Any first year students interested in being tutored by upperclassmen in Math, Latin, French or English can arrange to do so by applying at the Women's Union Office any weekday from 12 to 2 pm. The charge for an hour's lesson is $1.50.

Bob Talks About... Skypecks Omega

By Bob Cohen
Asst. Sports Editor

"You can quote me, he's the greatest. Without him, we would have never gotten this far. The man talking was John Roberts. The man he was speaking about was Tom Skypeck.

Using Roberts' praise as a frame of reference, it is safe to say that Skypeck's recent selection as this year's Omega (MVP) Award winner has been a most popular choice in the rank of the Redmen.

Unless you're close to the scene, it is difficult to imagine how completely Skypeck led the Redmen. He did it in such a way that his teammates learned to respect his ability and authority while they embraced him as a sidekick.

Skypeck has a keen football mind. He possesses that unique and essential property of being able to size up and exploit the enemy's weakness. He is also able to perform with the best of them.

At the same time, Skypeck made football for the Redmen just plain fun. His good humor was unfailing throughout. He also knew where to draw the line. In scrimmage and in actual games he was all business. Tom Skypeck was the logical and only possible choice for this award which he so deservedly won.

WHERE WAS WALLIE??

The recent all-star football selections bestowed quite a bit of honor on our champion Redmen. No less than ten Red and White color bearers took half the positions on the 'dream team'. With such a generous allegation of positions to McGill men, then bystander would think that we would be satisfied. Well, we're not!

No one can suggest, that of the ten men who made the all-star squad, a single one of them didn't deserve to be there. We honestly feel that McGill should have at least one more man named on the team. Wallie Barrie was a glaring omission.

Barrie is just the type of ball player that you would expect to be overlooked in an all-star selection. He's not much of a holler guy and he doesn't have exceptional size. There's just one thing. Nobody, but nobody in the league can get the job done as consistently as Barrie. He's the type of player that enables coaches to sleep soundly at night.

Time and time again throughout the season, Coach Coulter lauded the efforts of his super-dependable line-backer. Barrie was acclaimed as a sure fire professional prospect. Despite all the acclaim, Barrie's name did not appear on the list. Anyway, Wallie and his rooters probably aren't feeling too badly. This wasn't the only irregularity in all-star voting.

OFFICIATING

The officiating during this past football season was not too bad. Referees made their share of miscues but on the average, the men in green did a good job of keeping things on the move.

The hockey season is now upon us. Last year, the officials were terrible. Their refereeing lacked finality and in several places, good sense. Some games against Toronto were just blood baths with a bit of hockey on the side. Let's hope we see an improvement this season.

Hockey Squad to Play U of M On Sat. At MWS

After clobbering Sir George Williams University 8-2 in a match on Wednesday, the McGill Redmen Hockey team is scheduled to play the University of Montreal on Saturday.

In Wednesday's game they completely routed the Georgian pucksters in a smashing action-packed battle. The line of Jones, Riley, and Hutchison led the attack and will be on hand in the coming game.

This clash will determine the strength of the U of M team against a squad which has proven itself once already and is looking to repeat the fine performance.

EXHIBITION

Although these are only exhibition games, they are a good thermometer for the season to come. If they win the Redmen will be tough to top.

Confidence and support go hand in hand with ability in the shaping of a superlative squad. Winning this game will give them the confidence they need, and if fans materialize we can look forward to an unbeaten season.

Although the U of M boys outplayed the McGill Intermediate squad, they will find it a little more difficult to rout our seniors.

All that can be predicted is a tough battle to excite the fans who do show up and let's hope that you are one of the ones who will be in store for a thrilling time on Saturday.

Indians Beaten 9-3

The McGill Intermediate hockey team began its season Monday night with a 9-3 defeat at the hands of the University of Montreal senior squad.

Not much could be expected from the Indians as this was their first game and they were playing against a team of higher calibre. They did manage to outplay the U of M on occasion and scored three goals — Grant, Flaherty and Gilfillan counted.

At the end of the first period the U of M had taken a 3-1 lead against our outmatched boys. By the end of the second period they were winning 5-2, and in the last period 9-3.

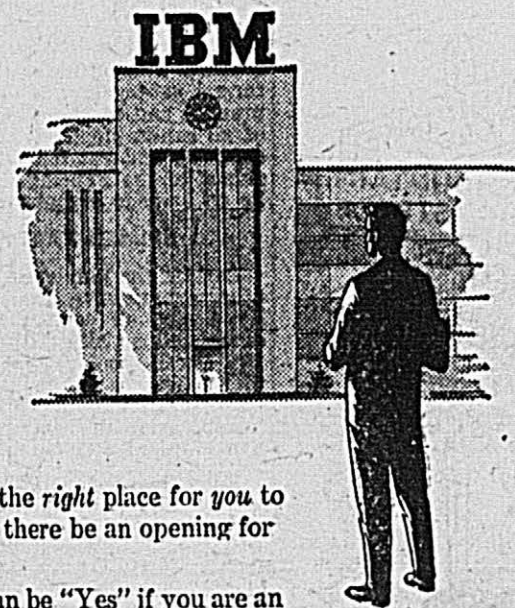

Coach Dave Copp said in an interview with the Daily, "They made the mistakes that a junior team will make against an older, more experienced team."

Great hope is expressed for the future of the squad in their coming games. It is fairly sure that with the practice and able tutelage of Coach Copp, the team will gradually improve in their matches.

The next scheduled game is against Sir George Williams on Saturday night. Support is a key factor in the success of a team, so let us keep apathy on the way out and see you on Saturday.

Coed Sports Day Held Tomorrow

by BERTHA KALIFON
and
ROSALIND SAGINUR

Tomorrow, the Women's Athletic Association will be playing host to a contingent of teams from three universities. The occasion — a competitive Sports Day.

Middlebury and the University of Vermont, both American, and Bishop's U. will make the trip to Montreal to compete against McGill in four athletics, Basketball, Bowling, Badminton, and Fencing. At least 100 coeds are expected to participate.

BADMINTON PLAY

This event, an innovation into the WAA programme will be launched at 1:30 pm in the Currie gym and in the Dorchester "YWCA" alleys. In the East gym, the Badminton quartet, Lynne Allen, Nancy Anglin, Frances Rorke, and Janet Oliver will defend the Red and White in a singles and doubles round robin tournament. Miss Allen will handle the first singles duties while Nancy Anglin will contend in the second singles. Miss Rorke and Miss Oliver are teamed up for the duet event. Coach Proyer and President Nancy Anglin organized the competition, consisting of three rounds; all teams will be playing in each round.

While the teams are lining up for the racquet game, the Bas-ketbells will station themselves in the West gym for their hoopla matches. The tournament will consist of single round robin play each game consists of four, 6-minute period. Because of the conflict in American and Canadian Basketball rules, one-half of each game will be officiated in the Canadian manner, the other the American way. McGill's Junior Basketball coached by Miss Brodie squad have been practising for several weeks for this event. Vicky Christmas, Diane Drury, Louise Forbes, Penny Rand Marylin Maugh, Stephanie Stevenson, and Sandy Wilson will see action on the offensive line. Holding up the defensive line are Karen Gray, Maya Romer and Heather Sinclair.

Miss Dubrule and Stephanie Stevenson, President of the Basketball Club organized the programme for this sport.

ALLEY SPORT

While the opening whistle is sounded for the initial Basketball game in the Currie gym, several blocks away, in the Dorchester YWCA, the first ball will swoop down the alleys to sound the start of the Bowling competition. Half a dozen bowlers from each university will compete in the 10-pin game. McGill's crew consists of Roz Saginur, Claire Hamilton, Sandy Kulscar, Judy Matthews, Louise Krasnow, Marg Davidson.

Mrs. Brewer and Rosalind Saginur, President of the Bowling Club arranged this event.

At 2:30 p.m. the Turner Bone Room of the Currie gym will set the stage for non-competitive fencing. The purpose of this informal get-together is to provide practice and coaching for fencers of all ranks. Mr. Tully will offer coaching and Pat Sheppard, President of the Fencing Club, will be on hand to organize play.

SPLASH PARTY

Besides the four sports several other events have been planned. By 4 p.m. all competitions will cease and activity will move to the Currie pool, where the audience will be treated to a synchronized swimming display by members of the Intercollegiate Synchronized Swimming team.

Eddie Dorsay is slated to perform a solo routine; this will be followed by a trio effort by Jo Denny, Jill Chaloner, and Marg Harris. All four swimmers recently brought the Ashworth Trophy home from Quebec. Then, the athletes, timers scorers, coaches will surge into the water for a Splash Party. To complete the Sports Day, a Refreshments Banquet has been planned for all participants, organizers and competitors alike.

DETAILED PLANS

The Sports Day Committee, with Adviser Miss Bean and Chairman Roz Saginur at the helm, have been hard at work this past week to put the finishing touches on what seems to be another promising first for McGill. A programme sheet has been run off, with a hilarious cartoon cover by Annual Arts Editor and Cartoonist, Gael Eakin; fliers about the event have been circulated, and the Decorations Committee of Janet Westaway and Claudia Hulme have worked hard to produce original place-cards, and centre-pieces. In charge of refreshments is Sandy Tanzman.

Students should find time from the football game or their studies to come support their team, even if only for a short time.

Intramural Highlights

by BOB NEWMAN

With the playing of the final playoff game last week, intramural football has departed from the intramural sports parade and the winter intramural sports take over. Basketball, Ice Hockey, Floor Hockey and Volleyball are all organized in leagues, and tournaments are slated in table tennis, squash and badminton.

BASKETBALL

The schedule begins on Monday, November 21. There are four sections with seven teams in each, comprising 28 teams in all.

The first day of competition will feature the Money Makers vs. Medicine II, the Mix-ups vs. Dentistry III, the Turkeys vs. Education, the Bankers vs. Dentistry II, the Bouncers vs. Medicine III, Architecture vs. the Field Mice, the Four Cycles vs. Medicine I, Medicine IV vs. the Swifties, the Cycles vs. Dentistry IV, the Shysters vs. the Lakers, the Fireballs vs. the Geo Whizzes, and Dentistry I vs. Engineering I. Games will be played each Monday for seven weeks, and Playoffs will commence in February.

ICE HOCKEY

Seven teams are entered in competition in the Intramural Ice Hockey League. The seven are Commerce, Dentistry, Arts and Science, Medicine, Law, Engineering, and Architecture. The initial start is slated for Monday, November 21, when the Dents will meet Architecture. The Winter Stadium will be used for all games. After the regular season, playoffs will begin on February 13.

VOLLEYBALL

Intramural Volleyball has been set up in a league of three sections with eight teams in each. Each section will play on different days, — Tuesdays, Wednesdays, or Thursdays.

On Tuesday, November 22, the league will swing into action with the Bouncers meeting the Four Cycles, the Shysters going against the Giants, Dentistry III taking on Medicine III, and the Graduates playing the Eagles. Playoffs will begin on February 7th.

FLOOR HOCKEY

In Floor Hockey, there will be two sections of seven teams each competing this season.

Opening day is slated for Wednesday, November 23, with six games scheduled; the Four Cycles vs. Medicine I, Commerce vs. Architecture, Clivics vs. Graduates, the Epars vs. Medicine II, the Pistons vs. Dentistry, and the Shysters vs. the Red Wings. Playoffs will start on February 15th.

Women's Sports

Schedule

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 18

HOCKEY: Ice hockey from 5-6 p.m. in the Winter Stadium. First day of intramural games.
SKI EXERCISES: Exercises from 1:30-1:45 p.m. in the RVC gym.
SWIMMING: Speed swimming from 5-6 p.m. in the Currie pool.
RVC POOL: Recreational swimming from 2-10 p.m.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 19

RVC POOL: Recreational swimming from 2-6 p.m.

SPECIAL EVENTS

A women's Sports Day will be held on Saturday. Badminton and Basketball will be competed in the Currie gym. Bowling competition will take place in the Dorchester "Y". Synchronized swimming exhibition and Splash Party in the Currie pool.
